

SUMMARY I build rich interactives for websites and kiosks that engage, excite, and inform.

The clients have ranged from museums, non-profits, and artists to the occasional national supermarket chain, all with one thing in common: the need to tell a story. My skills lie in identifying that story and putting it to paper (metaphorically speaking) in a way that encourages visitors to dig ever deeper.

It is more than programming with Flash and robust content management systems like Drupal. It is typesetting with a jet-pack.
